

INTRODUCTION

Prior to developing communication to convey the work of the FACETS team, we must understand the public's water science knowledge and how their values affect their attitudes toward water sustainability measures.

This research will help ensure that outreach is understandable, engaging, and capable of cutting through the noise to help generate dialogue for a secure water future. Below is an outline of the steps ahead.

